

Commercial Office Building
4619 N. Ravenswood
Chicago, Illinois

The remarkable transformation of an ordinary industrial/commercial building into a contemporary office structure uses metal siding and glass to achieve a transparent and dynamic result. Structural expression and simple enlarged forms articulate the facades with uncluttered clarity. Interior space becomes flooded with natural light, creating the opportunity for maximum flexibility in interior design. New mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems ensure energy efficiency while giving individual control to tenants.

Re-use of the existing structure, installation of new insulated tinted glass and a new "cool" roof contribute to make this project an environmentally sensitive modern building.
